

CURIOSITY

During the first half of the spring term, 2020, the School Council asked all the children in the school to suggest ways in which the teachers could provide opportunities for the children to practise the skills associated with Curiosity and put them to good effect.

The School Council will then consult with teachers, parents and governors for their views. Afterwards A4 coloured posters will be made to help all when working curiously.

- Stop getting us to put hands up – use lolly sticks with names on
- Take us to more interesting places
- Let children explore more – more school walks
- Treasure hunts / be outside more
- Answer questions freely
- Giving out questions with more than one answer or no answer
- Guessing games / mystery books
- Voting on subjects
- Making lessons more engaging – letting us do what we want
- Open-minded activities
- More encouragement
- Search things that you don't know
- Have hands up more
- Test quizzes
- Longer lessons
- Different lessons
- Set more challenges
- Feel objects in a bag
- Different topics
- Rewards for all people who have used this skill
- Give 3 different options
- Using interesting things to get people's hands up

Ideas from the headteacher

- Call my bluff
- Watch experts / examples of amazing things, sparking curiosity
- Visitors
- Utilise '8 way thinking'
